Youth Leadership Development Program : An Authentic Leader

Pankaj Malani, CEO of Unique Group of Companies

By BHARAT SALVADY & AARNAV GAKKAR

In the past 50 years researchers have conducted more than 1000 studies on finding out the formula to become a natural leader. The leadership scholars looked at multiple different aspects of leaders such as the characteristics and the personality traits, yet even after all this work no one could find the definitive traits of a leader.

Why is it that even after thousands of experiments nothing was found? It is because leadership is not a cookie cutter thing, one must be authentic to properly be a leader.

Pankaj Malani's emphatic session with YLDP (Youth Leadership Development Program) graced all the students and staff that were present for such an enriching event.

Not only was it inspiring, it also was inclusive to so many nuanced life lessons and perspectives that were thought to be irrelevant for most leaders today.

Pankaj Malani is the CEO of Unique Group of Companies, a development and shipping corporation with global connections and wide networks. Mr. Malani detailed his life story and his work history to young students aspiring to gain a head start on their future careers.

Ultimately, Malani truly related his entrepreneurial mind to the multi-faceted concepts from the HBR Chapter as well "Discovering Your Authentic Leadership."

He talked a lot about inspiring and empowering others, and how that is heavily related to being a leader, and managing so many people, especially for a shipping company where there are so many variables that are present in the process. He also explains that as leaders, they must be devoted and dedicated to specific things and goals that can lead to personal growth and development as people and leaders in a growing world.

One of the many interesting things Malani elucidated upon was the impact that his values and life story contributed to the way he worked, and his work ethic shaped his success. He emphasized his back story and how that process allowed him to be who he is today, while explaining that such a context can be inspiration and educational as it motivates people to strive to do better, while also created learning opportunities to learn from your mistakes and other people's mistakes along the way.

Furthermore, protecting your values and principles was also another large aspect to Malani's core ideologies. Malani's session was very inspiring and motivational for all of us future leaders out there.

Ukraine conflict and India

To the Editor:

This writup is in response to Dr. Jay K. Raman's letter on "Ukraine Conflict and India", published in India Herald of April 6, 2022, him justifying India's position to stay mum about unjustified invasion of democratic sovereign nation of Ukraine, stating that "Morality reality does not count in international power game".

Morality and Democracy should be the main pillar for peaceful world order for common humanity. India in this matter acted against its national motto "Satyameva Jayate". But why so? Because India has not attained self-reliance on its defense against bully nation China, and British created nation Pakistan. India will be always sandwiched between different current and merging superpowers because of lack of development of advance defense technology weapons at home since its Independence. India has 17.7 percent of world population, and spends considerable GDP on buying weapons from other nations, including Russia, which are in fact much inferior in operation.

Current world politics keep changing with time. No other country will come to India's defense, other than India itself. India should speak truth about the actions of an autocrat Vladimir Putin, causing unthinkable human suffering, destruction of cities and considerable environmental harm to the planet. In fact, world powers should work to break up the Russian Federation, which Russia has amazed eleven percent of world landmass by force. Remember, if you ask a bully to support you in any instant, he will one day exploit you also. Your best support is self-reliance.
